

Unthinking: The Surprising Forces Behind What We Buy (Chinese Edition)

In a blind test, two thirds of subjects bought Coca-Cola while they actually had a preference for Pepsi- it seems that we are not rational enough when making choices among products and services. What is the secret factor that takes effect in this irrationality? In Harry Beckwith's opinion, innocence, culture and vision are three key factors. People love stories, and Harry expounds his ideas with vivid stories: the birth of Mac, the decadence of sexy goddess, the mystery and rhythm in music, the rise of Japan's Nintendo Wii games, the packaging of vitamin water, and the names length of popular movie stories in the book not only surprise readers but inform readers those workman and enterprise that win customers heart will win the market of industries.
